

Toastmasters Kicks Off World's Largest Speech Contest

30,000 participants compete to become the 2016 World Champion of Public Speaking

RANCHO SANTA MARGARITA, Calif., Feb. 4, 2016 /PRNewswire/ -- The world's largest speech competition recently launched with more than 30,000 contestants in 135 countries vying for the title of World Champion of Public Speaking. The Toastmasters International Speech Contest begins with participants giving presentations in local clubs as they polish their oratory skills while advancing to area, division and district levels. The competition culminates with the World Championship of Public Speaking on Aug. 20 in Washington, D.C.

"The speech contest is a highpoint of the convention and Toastmasters experience," says Toastmasters International President Jim Kokocki. "The contestants come from all over the world to deliver their speech with the hope of becoming the next World Champion."

Ninety-eight semifinalists will compete during the Toastmasters 2016 International Convention held Aug. 17 – 20, in Washington, D.C., at the Marriott Marquis Washington, D.C. Finalists will make it to the final round on Aug. 20, where the winner is crowned the Toastmasters World Champion of Public Speaking.

To be eligible for the competition, participants must be age 18 or older, and present a five-to-seven-minute speech in English on any topic. Judging criteria include speech content, originality, organization, gestures, style and timing.

"Becoming the World Champion of Public Speaking was the culmination of a dream I didn't think was possible," says Mohammed Qahtani from the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, who is Toastmasters' 2015 World Champion of Public Speaking. "When the competition began at the club level, it was hard to imagine that, at the end of the journey, I would be crowned the winner. The reality was much more satisfying than a dream."
